I know the badge and flag and of Australia.

Let's find out more about the different flags of Australia.

Australia

Culture

Australian Flag

The Australian National Flag is Australia's national symbol. It was first flown in 1901 and has become a significant part of the Australian identity. The Australian National Flag is used at many significant events such as ANZAC Day, National Reconciliation Day, Olympic Games and at different services for community groups. It is also seen at federal and state parliaments.

The Australian National Flag has three elements on its blue background. The flag contains the Union Jack, the Commonwealth Star and the Southern Cross.

Australian Flag

The Union Jack in the upper left corner acknowledges the history of British settlement.

The white Commonwealth or Federation Star has seven points. These points represent the unity of the six states and the territories of Australia that occurred on 1st January 1901. This star can also be seen on the Commonwealth Coat of Arms.

The Southern Cross is shown on the right hand side of the flag. This constellation of five states can only be seen from the southern hemisphere.

Aboriginal Flag

The Australian Aboriginal flag is very significant to Australia's culture. It shows the connection that the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have with this land. The flag is displayed at Aboriginal centres and is well recognised. It has special importance on days of particular significance to the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, such as NAIDOC Week and National Reconciliation Week.

The Australian Aboriginal flag features three different parts. First, the flag is divided up into two horizontal halves. The top half of the flag is black and the bottom half of the flag is red. Then, there is a yellow circle placed directly in the centre of the flag.

Aboriginal Flag

The black colour represents the Aboriginal people of Australia.

The yellow circle represents the sun. The sun is the giver of life and protector of the people and their land.

The red colour represents the earth. The red ochre (crumbly red rock) is used in ceremonies and is the Aboriginal peoples' spiritual relation to the land.

Commonwealth Coat of Arms

The Commonwealth Coat of Arms is the formal symbol of the Commonwealth of Australia that signifies Commonwealth authority and ownership.

Commonwealth Coat of Arms

The kangaroo and emu are the native animals that hold the shield with pride. The animals were chosen to symbolise a nation moving forward based on the belief that neither animal can move backwards easily.

A gold Commonwealth Star sits above the shield. Six points on the star represent the Australian states.

The seventh point represents the territories. The colours of the wreath of the crest are gold and blue and the border of the shield symbolises federation.

Australia's floral emblem, the golden wattle, surrounds the shield and supporters.

Commonwealth Coat of Arms

The Coat of Arms contains a shield with six parts, each containing and representing the badge of a state.

New South Wales (1st quarter) - the Cross of St George containing an heraldic gold lion with three paws on the ground and the right forepaw being raised up.

Victoria (2nd quarter) - the Southern Cross with an imperial crown in normal colours placed above the top star.

Queensland (3rd quarter) - A blue Maltese Cross and Crown.

Commonwealth Coat of Arms

South Australia (4th quarter) - The Australian piping shrike perched on a twisted band of green and red.

Western Australia (5th quarter) – A black swan swimming.

Tasmania (6th quarter) - A red lion walking to the right with three paws on the ground with the right forepaw raised.
